1.1 Description and scope of the data processing

- information regarding the browser type and version used (“User Agent”);
- the user’s operating system;
- information regarding the device type (e.g., mobile or desktop)
- the user’s Internet service provider;
- the user’s IP address (if executed by the services used - e.g., Google Analytics; in that case, explanations can be found in the relevant section of the service);
- date, time and duration of the access;
- websites from which the user’s system is referred to our website (“Referrers”);
- websites accessed by the user’s system through our website.

With the exception of the IP address, the aforementioned Log Data do not allow a reference to persons; a reference to persons can only be established through the allocation, or link, of the Log Data to an IP address.

1.2 Purpose of the data processing

The collection and processing of the Log Data, in particular, the IP address, is made for the purpose of providing the content of our website to the user, i.e., for the purpose of the communication between the user and our web and/or online offer. The temporary storage of the IP address is necessary for the duration of the respective communication. That storage is necessary to address the communications between the user and our web and/or online offer, or to use our web and/or online offer, respectively.

Any processing and storage of the IP address in log files in excess of the communications is made for the purpose of ensuring the functionality of our web and online offers, to optimise those offers, and to ensure the security of our IT systems.

In other respects, we will analyse those data for statistical purposes. This will be done in aggregated form, and individual users cannot be traced back.

1.3 Legal basis

The legal basis for the collection and processing of the Log Data, to the extent that they constitute personal data, is Article 6(1)(b) GDPR, as well as national legal bases (if any), which apply specifically.

The legal basis for the storage of the IP address in excess of the scope of the communication is Article 6(1)(f) GDPR (safeguarding of legitimate interests), as well as national legal bases (if any), which apply specifically.

1.4 Data deletion and storage period

The data will be erased once they are no longer necessary for the purpose of their collection. In the event of a collection of the data to provide the website, this will be the case once the respective session - the visit to the website - ends. The additional storage of Log Data, including the IP address, will be made for the purpose of system security for a period of no longer than seven days from the end of the access to the site by the user.

The additional processing and/or storage of Log Data is possible and admissible if the IP addresses of the users are deleted, or modified in such a manner that the Log Data can no longer be allocated to an IP address, after the expiry of the aforementioned storage period of seven days.

1.5 Option to object and remove

The collection of Log Data to provide the website, including their storage in log files within the limits set out above, is mandatory for the operation of the website. Therefore, the user has no option to object.

2. General principles and information

2.1 Scope of the processing of personal data

We will only collect and use personal data of the users of our website to the extent that this is necessary to provide a functioning website and/or to provide our content and services through our web or online offers (including mobile apps).

For other purposes, personal data will only be collected and used (i) with the user's consent, (ii) if the processing is necessary for the performance of a contract or (iii) necessary to safeguard legitimate interests, unless such interests are overridden by the interests or fundamental rights or freedoms of the data subject which require the protection of personal data. In other respects, an exception will exist if a consent cannot be obtained for factual reasons, or the processing of the data is permitted by statutory provisions.

2.2 Legal bases

Where we obtain the consent by the data subject to the processing of personal data, Article 6(1)(a) GDPR will be the legal basis for the processing of personal data.

If the processing of personal data which is necessary for the performance of a contract to which the data subject is a party, Article 6(1)(b) GDPR will be the legal basis. This applies also to processing activities which are necessary to take steps prior to the conclusion of a contract.

Where the processing of personal data is necessary to comply with a legal obligation to which we are subject, Article 6(1)(c) GDPR will be the legal basis. Should vital interests of the data subject or of another natural person require the processing of personal data, Article 6(1)(d) GDPR will be the legal basis.

If the processing is necessary to safeguard a legitimate interest of our enterprise or a third party, and if that interest is not overridden by the interests or fundamental rights or freedoms of the data subject, Article 6(1)(f) GDPR will be the legal basis for the processing.

2.3 Obtaining of a consent / Right of revocation

Normally, a consent in accordance with Article 6(1)(a) GDPR will be obtained electronically. The consent is given by checking a box in the relevant field to document the consent, or by clicking a relevant selection field.

In the case of a consent given electronically, the "double opt-in" procedure1 will be applied to identify the user (e.g., for the subscription to a newsletter). The content of the declaration of consent will be logged electronically.

Right of revocation: Please note that a consent once given may be revoked in whole or in part at any time with effect for the future; the lawfulness of the processing made with the consent up to the revocation remains unaffected thereby. Please address a revocation (if applicable) to the contact details stated in first page (controller or data protection officer).

2.4 Recipients (if any) of personal data

To provide our web and/or online services, we may use service providers which act in connection with the provision of the service on our behalf and on instructions (processors). Those service providers may receive personal data in connection with the provision of the service, or come into contact with personal data, and constitute “third parties” or “recipients” within the meaning of the GDPR. The service providers may be third parties or group companies affiliated with us, for example, an IT services provider of the group.

In such case, we will ensure that our service providers provide sufficient guarantees that appropriate technical and organisational measures have been implemented and that processing activities will meet the requirements of the GDPR and warrant the protection of the rights of the data subject (Article 28 GDPR).

Where personal data are transmitted to third parties outside the scope of commissioned processing, we will ensure that this will be done exclusively in compliance with the requirements of the GDPR and on an appropriate legal basis (see section 2.2 above). Where such a transmission is made, this will be expressly pointed out within the scope of the information set out below, while stating the respective legal basis, and the third-party recipient, or the categories of recipients, will be named. Third parties may also include group companies affiliated with us such as, for example, national subsidiaries. In that respect, the transmission can be made, for example, on the basis of our legitimate interest such as to arrange for a better local support of the user.

Further information regarding the service providers used by us can be found here.

Information regarding our group companies can be found here.

2.5 Processing of data in third countries

As a general rule, your personal data will be processed within the EU or the European Economic Area, respectively.

Only in exceptional cases (e.g., in connection with the use of service providers to render web analysis services, or in relation to one of our group companies acting world-wide) may information be transmitted to third countries. “Third countries” means countries outside the European Union and/or the Agreement on the European Economic Area, which may not have a data protection level comparable to the data protection level which exists in the EU.

If the transmitted information also includes personal data, we will ensure before such a transmission that an adequate data protection level is warranted in the respective third country, or the respective recipient in the third country. This may result from an “adequacy decision” by the European Commission or be warranted by the use of “EU standard contractual clauses”. In the event of recipients in the USA, an adequate data protection level may also be ensured by compliance with the principles of the “EU-US Privacy Shield”. We will be happy to provide you with further information regarding appropriate and adequate guarantees in relation to the compliance with an adequate data protection level; the contact details are set out at the beginning of this data privacy statement. Information regarding the participants in the EU-US Privacy Shield can also be found at www.privacyshield.gov/list.

2.6 Data deletion and storage period

The personal data of data subjects will be deleted or blocked once the purpose of the processing no longer exists. After the purpose of the processing no longer exists, personal data will only be stored if this is required by the European or national legislator in EU regulations, laws or other provisions to which our enterprise is subject (e.g., to comply with statutory retention duties and/or if there exist legitimate interests in the storage, for example, during the running of limitation periods for the purpose of a legal defence against claims). The data will also be blocked or deleted if a storage period prescribed by the aforementioned provision expires, unless the continued storage of the data is required for the conclusion of a contract or other purposes.

3. Use of personal data for advertising and marketing / Customer surveys

3.3 Legal basis

The legal basis for advertising and/or marketing activities on the basis of a consent is Article 6(1)(a) GDPR; the statements regarding the consent apply mutatis mutandis.
The legal basis for the sending of advertising is Article 6(1)(f) GDPR, in conjunction with § 7, section 1 German Act Against Unfair Competition, if you are a customer of us and we have received your email address in connection with the sale of a product or service.

Subject to a request for deletion, your data collected in a customer survey will be stored for as long as is necessary to carry out and analyse the customer survey. The analysed data will be stored in aggregated form in such a manner that an allocation to an individual person will no longer be possible.

3.5 Option to object and remove

You can object to the collection of your data for advertising and marketing purposes any time; the statements regarding the right to revoke the consent apply in addition. You can stop customer surveys at any time; if the survey has not yet been completed, the data collected up to then will be discarded.

If you wish to subscribe for the newsletter offered by us, we will require a valid email address from you. To verify whether you are the owner of the email address stated, or that its owner agrees to the sending of the newsletter, we will, after the first registration step, send an automated email to the email address stated ("double opt-in"). We will not include the email address stated in our distribution list before a confirmation of the newsletter registration through a link in the confirmation email.
